From the Desk of Rabbi Bruce Benson

And so it ends...and so it begins..

Another year over and here we start again.

The issues we faced and continue to stare down have created a new dynamic for us. I, for one, have seen Job in a completely new light.

On the other hand, I have seen life in a completely new light as well.

We have been pressed to the walls by a litany of challenges that would push many to the limits.

But, then there was the stability. The High Holidays came and were dealt with, head on. Different, but head on. Other challenges: the pandemic, a health threat unlike anything we have seen in our lifetimes. Something that has challenged our health, our belief systems and, most certainly, our nerves. To be separated from others for so long IS a challenge of Jobian proportions, and yet, we push on. That is what humans do. That is what Jews do.

The rise of discontent should bring some concern to all of us. The sense that everything has been upended is not one that is comfortable. But then there is Job - challenged in multiple levels - challenged as an individual, not a society.

The blessings we have, in spite of all, is each other. It's true, we look forward to being back in the sanctuary again. We live with the Knowledge that, someday, hopefully soon, we can. It is that continuing to look forward that will bring us to our goal.

In the meantime, let's work with what we have - let's see more of each other on Zoom, when we have outside events (when they begin) - attend.

Together (B'yachad), we will come back bigger and stronger and more together than ever.

Make the commitment to be there with us, all together, when it happens.

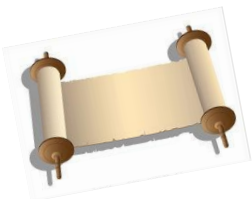

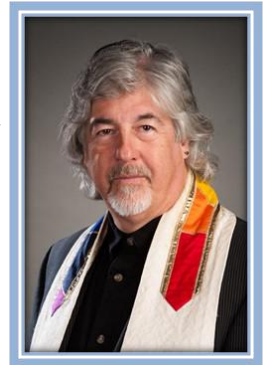

We'll be at the front door waiting with smiles on (without or under the masks) as soon as it's truly safe for us all to be here.

In the meantime, a New year has begun...MAKE it a good one.

Be inscribed in the Book of Life by what you DO, not just what you SAY..

Be safe - be well - Do Jew....

Rabbi B.

Our High Holy Day services, in the words of our members and non-members that tuned into YouTube, were amazing. Our deep gratitude to everyone that made this possible. At a time when we are challenged in so many ways and are unable to do anything or go anywhere without a mask, without sanitizing and aren't able to spend time with our friends and family for fear of spreading or getting sick, we were able to celebrate our Holidays in a way that allowed us to feel connected to each other and our traditions.

Our annual Yizkor Book of Remembrance was a huge fundraiser at a time when we are unable to do our regular fundraising events – thank you to everyone that took part by remembering their loved ones. Once again, we thank Sue Klatch, who worked very hard putting this Yizkor book together with Lydia Bauman. Thank you, too, to Karen Jackson for compiling the videos of the Holiday greetings and the Yizkor book that we saw during our High Holy Day virtual services.

We all look forward to the day when we can return to Temple and are hopeful that it will be in the very near future. Until then, stay safe .....

BROTHERHOOD NEWS

We wish all our members and friends a very Happy, Healthy New Year - L'Shanah Tova!

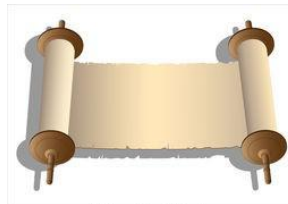

Thank you to Rabbi Benson for the beautiful, meaningful High Holy Day services that we were all privileged to watch on YouTube. Although we are getting used to virtual services, we can't wait until we can return to the Temple and be together again.

We are happy to report that Len Epstein is at home recuperating after having broken his leg in a fall last month. Speedy recovery Len!

Our next meeting on Wednesday, October 7th at 7:30 p.m. will tentatively be held in the Temple sanctuary where we can socially distance and discuss future projects and events. Watch for an email to verify the details of this meeting. You can call Jeff Kreiss (336-0427) for further information.

Let's all stay safe,

Jeff Kreiss, Brotherhood Vice President

Our Monthly TBEI Library Book Review.....by Sheilah Korinow

Here we are, another month with the COVID-19 threat, and I think that might still mean many of you are concentrating on more reading, if not more computer activities as well as TV. So it's a great time to think about checking out one of our library books that has a lot of meaningful ideas we can think about. That book is Torah Dynamics - Pirkei Avot Looks at Life, written by two men - Samson Krupnick, an accountant and descendant of Rabbi Levi Yitchak of Berdichev who has taught Pirkei Avot for over 50 years, and Dr. Morris Mandel, an educator, guidance counselor, and family therapist, as well as a newspaper columnist who wrote in the Jewish Press. He is also the author of many books.

I have chosen this book, not only because of its interesting and meaningful content for us and our present lives, but because of the way the writers went about discussing Pirkei Avot. Instead of just giving you a copy of it, they chose to divide their book into topics that make it more crucial to our understanding of it - something that will make more sense, is more organized, and helps us think about individual subjects. It seems to be a novel approach - just take a specific topic, and follow it through the Mishnayot, adding other sources to enrich the discussion.

Pirkei Avot (Ethics of the Fathers) consists of the five original chapters of the Mishnah Tractate Avot and the added 6th chapter called Kinyan Torah. Pirkei Avot is the most popular and widely known of all the 63 tractates of the Mishnah - recited and studied publicly each Sabbath between Passover and Rosh Hashanah. Sixty-two of the sixty-three short books that make up the Mishnah are legal texts, with topics such as blessings and the laws of the Sabbath. But only Pirkei Avot does not deal with the laws. It is concerned with things based on human experience and is a guide to Jewish ethics. Its contents are practical even though its words are spiritual. Hillel is frequently mentioned in Pirkei Avot, as are many leading rabbinic scholars from different generations who have contributed to the "Oral Law" of Judaism.

I'm going to refer to a few topics and show you how the book is set up. When you read it, you will see the authors use examples from Pirkei Avot and combine them with other sources from other places in our bible, then include an interesting and clear discussion. So the main focus of the book are the topics, forcing us to think about each of them and how they may affect our lives. Let me give you a few examples.

Time

This is a topic emphasized in Pirkei Avot. We conclude we must use it wisely - making the most out of it when it is available. In AVOT I:14, Hillel asks: "And if not now, then when?" How many of us say "I'll do that tomorrow," but then it never gets done - perhaps due to something else coming up unexpectedly (visitors, a repair in our house that must be done right away, and yes, even Zooming or Facetime!) We can also count a feeling of lethargy or laziness that overtakes us even though we never planned for it.

The authors also bring in other sources such as Ecclesiastes 3:1-8 where King Solomon wrote: "To every thing there is a season and a time for every purpose...." So every point in time has a particular purpose, different for everyone. The discussion in the book says: "It has been wisely said that the future requires the past." Since our use of time will provide concrete illustration to those who come after us, we must set standards and values that are worthy of emulation. Although the past cannot be brought back, if it can teach lessons, then it will shape and mold the future." We can learn from everything - but do we?

Topic - The Futility of Anger

Aristotle once said: "Anyone can become angry - that is easy. But to be angry with the right person, and to the right degree, and at the right time, and for the right purpose, and in the right way - that is not within everyone's power and is not easy." We all know that anger is part of our lives, for some more than others. We can look back on our lives and see where anger played a part. In today's world we see much anger on social media, whether it be tweets or recordings of protesters and wrongdoers. It's frustrating! It seems anger never stops. But it's best to turn to our own religion and see what our people said about anger, and then, of course, think about it. The authors have given us a quote from Avot V:11. Here we read "There are four kinds of dispositions: He who is easily provoked and easily pacified - his gain is cancelled by his loss. He who is difficult to provoke and difficult to pacify - his loss is cancelled by his gain. He who is difficult to provoke and easily pacified - is a pious man. He who is easily provoked and difficult to pacify - is a wicked man." Another example is in Avot IV:18: "Do not attempt to pacify your fellow man in the time of his anger." Think about that one. In the time of anger, a person cannot really accept an apology or offer one. This chapter is full of other bits of wisdom found in Proverbs and many stated by rabbis during that time period. The authors also offer a meaningful discussion of what the chapter contains.

So now you've seen a few examples of what the book holds. You might also wonder what other topics the book discusses, so I'll list them below.

This certainly is a great list of topics to take time to contemplate!

The authors also include a helpful section called "Historical Background and Biographies of the Sages in Order of Their Reference in Pirkei Avot." You will also find the English and Hebrew texts of Pirkei Avot. These are both in the back of the book. There is also a glossary.

With a mixture of subjects, Talmudic materials, biblical references, stories from our rabbis, and parables, we find we have an extremely thought-provoking book in our library. For ages, people have been pondering the topics included in Pirkei Avot and other historical sources mentioned. Today is no different -we think about and discuss these same topics during much of our lives. Because of present events, we may find even more meaning within its pages. With a little more time on our hands due to the pandemic, why don't we use a book that is a way to help us make more sense out of our lives and what we have to face. I highly recommend Torah Dynamics.

If the temple remains closed when you see this review and you would like to check out this book, I will gladly make arrangements with you to sign it out in our Temple's parking lot, or I'll even deliver it to you. Just let me know by e-mail at skorinow@gmail.com or call me at 772-871-0030. When the temple re-opens, I will leave all the books I have reviewed since last April on the shelf on the left as you enter the library which has a wooden box. Take out a slip, fill it out, and replace the slip back into the box. To return the book, just leave it where you found it.

Stay safe!

Remembering Bernice Rosmarin

Bernice grew up on Pelham Parkway in the Bronx, not far from future husband Marvin. They met on a sunny day at Orchard Beach, spent dinner dates on City Island and married after Marvin returned from military service in Japan. They were each other's first loves and they more married for more than half a century.

Bernice & Marvin raised their children in Edison, N.J. They were deeply engaged in their community and took great pride in being one of the founding families of Temple Emanu-El of Edison. The synagogue began in a small rented church in 1962 and grew into today's large and vibrant congregation. While raising her children, Bernice caught the travel bug. After taking a class and learning the ropes as a travel agent, she founded Edison Travel, Inc. Within a few years, Marvin joined her in this business, which eventually grew into a chain of five offices in central New Jersey. Bernice was a pioneering businesswoman and she and Marvin founded a travel industry. Bernice died peacefully at age 90 on September 14th, after living a full and rewarding life.
